GRAHAM COUNTY WILL HOLD FAIR

Board of Supervisors Appoint Members of the Fair Commission

MANY HORSES IN TRAINING

Fair Commissioners Will Hold First Meeting in Safford Next Tuesday Afternoon

Graham county will hold a fair this year. This has been assured by unanimous action of the board of supervisors at its meeting Monday, when they appointed the fair commissioners, under whose supervision the fair will be held.

The proposition to hold a county fair this year was enthusiastically discussed by the citizens and business men generally throughout the county, and led to a committe appearing before the board of supervisors Monday to urge speedy action. This committee consisted of: Mit Sims, of Solomonville; W. R. Reed and William Ellsworth, of Layton; E. W. Clayton, John F. Weber, J. M. Wilson and W. B. Fonda, of Safford.

Mr. Weber, acting as spokesman for the committe, presented to the board of supervisors the reasons why a county fair should be held this fall and the necessity for speedy action by the board in the matter of appointing the fair commissioners who would supervise all the details in the work of making the Graham county fair for 1913 the most successful county fair in the state.

The board of supervisors were just as enthusiastic over the proposition as were the members of the committee, and after a short discussion over available material for fair commissioners, passed the motion unanimously for holding the county fair and appointing the following fair commissioners.

W. A. Gillespie and Mit Sims, Solomonville; R. G. Layton and Bert Hoopes, Thatcher; Art Lines and Haaken Anderson, Pima; Frank Webster, Central; James M. Talley, Graham; Dave Rogers, Eden; C. D. Stephens, Ft. Thomas; Miles Wood, Bonita; J. F. Greenwood, Klondyke; E. W. Clayton, Z. C. Prina and W. B. Fonda, Safford, and Byron Smith, Layton.

The fair commissioners will be notified of their appointment by E. W. Clayton, and the first meeting of the commission will be held next Tuesday afternoon, at two o'clock, at the Bank of Safford. At this meeting the commission will organize and select its officers and get busy at once in starting the ball rolling for the best county fair in Arizona.

Graham county is fortunate in having a fair grounds that is only equalled by the State Fair at Phoenix. The track is one of the best in the country and with little work can be made the fastest track in the State.

At the present time there is in training at the fair grounds some of the best pacing, trotting and running stock in the country, and nearly every horse is entered in the big stake races at the State fair at Phoenix this year.

The stables represented and horses in training are:

Victor Holding, Safford—
Maggie Barkley, pacer. Record: 2:11¼.
Lady Boydella, trotter. Record: 2:12.
Al Sidnor, Globe—
Zona B., trotter. Record: 2:15.
Mare (no name), trotter. Record: 2:15.
Dr. Cummings, Safford—
Senator C., trotter, three-year-old. No record.
Mit Sims, Solomonville—
Kid S., trotter. No record.
J. D. Butler, Safford—
Dorothy B., trotter. Record: 2:20.
Belle V., trotter. No record.
Mr. Hobart, Safford—
Walter Johnson, trotter, three year-old. Record: 2:30.
Runner, mile and repeat.
Thomas Campbell, Safford—
Vino, runner, five-eighths mile.
Chub, runner, one-fourth mile.
Henry Gray, Safford—
Ramorian, five-eights mile.
Red Hussar, one mile.
John Freeman, Safford—
One horse in training.

Besides the above-mentioned horses, the most of whom are entered in stake events at Willcox, Tucson and Phoenix, there are some good runners and trotters in the valley. Dave Felshaw, of Pima, owns a bunch of runners, and there is a fine trotter owned in Thatcher.

With the best showing in years of trotting and running stock now in training at the fair grounds, the races this year will be the best ever pulled off and the public are assured of a square deal in every race.

Our farmers should now get busy for the fair, for there will be prizes for best exhibits in farm products, as well as for hogs, dairy stock, poultry, ducks, goats, etc.

For the ladies prizes will be given for the best exhibits in the woman's department.

For the school children there will be prizes for the best school exhibits.

A horse show and a cattle show will be one of the features this year that will be most interesting.

An exhibit of dairy stock will be a leading feature, with prizes for butter made at the ranch and butter factory, and for cows yielding highest percentage in butter fat.

The program for each day will be complete with races, exhibitions and sports of all kinds that will go in the making of a successful holiday week for the people of the county.

WILSON IS BOUNCED

Ambassador to Mexico, Friend of Huerta, Has Lost His Job

President Wilson took the first steps Monday in the policy through which he proposes to deal with the Mexican situation. He formally accepted the resignation of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, to take effect on October 14th, and sent to Mexico his personal representative—but not accredited to the Huerta government—former Governor John Lind, of Minnesota, a life-long friend of Secretary Bryan. The understanding is that when a stable government is established in Mexico, Mr. Lind will be named as ambassador.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan had frequent conferences Monday; Ambassador Wilson had a long talk with Mr. Bryan, and Chairman Bacon, of the senate foreign relations committee, discussed the situation with the president at the White House. But except for the announcement of Mr. Lind's mission, no explanation of the policy to be pursued by the American government was forthcoming.

The statement of Secretary Bryan read:

"Ex-Governor John Lind, of Minnesota, has been sent to Mexico as the personal representative of the president to act as advisor to the embassy at present. When the president is ready to communicate with the Mexican authorities as to the restoration of peace, he will make public his views. Governor and Mrs. Lind departed for Mexico Monday night by rail to proceed via New Orleans or Galveston."

Meanwhile, arms and munitions of war from the United States will continue to be denied to the two warring forces and unless it is apparent that international efforts to bring about peace have failed, the United States will not offer its services as a mediator. Mr. Lind undoubtedly will act in that capacity when the time comes.

Declarations from both Huerta and Carranza have been made in the press rejecting mediation proposals, but administration officials realize that both sides fear they may be showing weakness in the acceptance of such a proposal at this time, and are not convinced that friendly efforts to mediate would prove effective. Officials here hope that the effort to put an end to bloodshed and property loss would appeal to public opinion in Mexico and unite the fractions on a peace program.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

Judge G. W. Bartch, of Washington, D. C., in Town

Judge G. W. Bartch, former chief justice of the Supreme Court of the state of Utah, accompanied by A. M. Tenney, of Thatcher, was a visitor in town Monday.

Judge Bartch is looking after the interests of the refugees from Mexico and stopped over on his way to El Paso to gather some data in regard to claims against the government of Mexico by his clients on account of loss of property in the Mormon settlements.

Since his retirement from the supreme bench of Utah, Judge Bartch has been practicing law in Washington, D. C., where he is connected with one of the prominent law firms.

William and James O. Ellsworth returned Friday from Los Angeles, Cal., bringing back with them their mother Mrs. Eliza Ellsworth, who has been very sick in Los Angeles.

NORTHERN ARIZONA NORMAL SCHOOL

GROUP OF STUDENTS AT NORTHERN ARIZONA NORMAL SUMMER SCHOOL

High up in the Sky City (Flagstaff), where the air is always cool and fresh and pure, the stately pine ever breathes forth its health-giving fragrance, in the protecting shadow of the majestic San Francisco Peaks, lies the Northern Arizona Normal School, one of the youngest, but one of the most promising of all western schools.

This institution has an enviable reputation to look back upon. In the past four years under the energetic and efficient direction of President Blome, it has registered the phenominal gain of two hundred per cent in attendance; in the last school year the increase was thirty-three and one-third per cent, and the summer school just closing was more than a third larger than that of the year preceding.

In these four years, too, its equipment has been steadily added onto, so with increased size has come increased efficiency. The Northern Arizona Normal School now offers all the standard courses to be found in any well appointed, first-class school of its kind. Agriculture, manual training and domestic science are features recently added to the curriculum. These courses answer the call for instruction in things practical that is arising over the country.

In a region such as Arizona where the problems of farming must be reduced to a scientific basis, agricultural studies are of especial benefit. The result must be not only better farming, but renewed and increased interest among young men and women in America's greatest industry. That there is real educational development in working intelligently with the hand as well as purely with the brain, is no longer denied by leading educators and all are agreed that no girl is truly educated who has not acquired the arts of cooking and housekeeping, hence, manual training and domestic science have come to be fixed courses in our best schools, and along with agriculture are no more to be dispensed with in a live normal school than is the training department.

The training school of this institution is one of the best of its kind anywhere. It is under expert management and given the most careful consideration. It has more than kept pace with the rest of the department in growth, an increase of one hundred per cent in enrollment being its record for last year.

By a year ago, the Northern Arizona Normal School had outgrown her building equipment. Students were applying for entrance and there was no place to put them. The dormitories were full and running over. New buildings were needed badly, and at once, the state legislature appropriated over $88,000 for new dormitories and a central heating plant.

Northern Arizona Normal is distinctly a State school with statewide

GILA VALLEY ON MAP

Westgard Will Log the Route from San Diego for the Southern Highway

E. W. Clayton is in receipt of advices from Dell M. Potter, through L. L. Henry of Globe, stating that A. L. Westgard will leave San Diego, August 5th, to log the route of the Southern National Highway, and requesting us to arrange for cars to meet him at San Carlos and pilot him through the valley; also to arrange with Clifton, Lordsburg and Duncan to take care of him from there.

This log is of great importance, as Mr. Westgard is traveling under the auspices of the American Automobile Association.

The first proposition was to log by way of Douglas, over the Borderland route, but Mr. Potter succeeded in having this routing changed to our route.

The people of the valley should take an interest in this. Mr. Westgard should reach the valley any day after Saturday, August 9th.

The success of Mr. Potter in getting Mr. Westgard to log the route for the Southern National Highway through the Gila Valley will be most pleasing to our people, as it practically places this valley on the national highway and this means a great deal for the valley.

It will be quite an enervating sight to witness the coming and going of automobiles, some from California and some from the East and North, besides it places the valley in the front and advertises the route for all automobilists.

It will also bring in money, as people traveling by autos over the country are good spenders and need supplies of all kinds, as well as hotel accommodations.

With a good road through from Globe to Clifton and to Lordsburg, this will become a popular thoroughfare for travelers, and the people of the valley should extend a hearty greeting to Mr. Westgard when he comes through, probably on Sunday.

SAWTELLE APPOINTED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—W. A. Sawtelle, of Tucson, has been appointed by the president United States judge for the district of Arizona. He was recommended by both senators, and the nomination is expected to go to the senate today.

Emert Kempton is reported very ill from typhoid fever at his home in Graham.

STATE TAX ROLLS, $369,321,322.74

The Increase Assessment for 1913 Over 1912 Amounts to $228,933,131.66

STATE BOARD IN SESSION

To Equalize Assessments and Make the Final Changes in the Rolls

Arizona's State tax rolls, as made up by the assessors of the various counties, list property valued at $369,321,322.74. The rolls last year totaled $140,388,191.08, the increase in valuation this year being $228,933,131.66.

As the assessment last year was made on a 50 per cent basis and this year was made on an actual valuation basis the increase in property values in the State is more than eighty-eight million dollars. Doubling last years total—property in the state having been assessed at one-half its value—fixes the value of property in the state at that time as $280,776,382.16. The difference between that sum and the total valuation this year is $88,544,950.58.

Following is a tabulated list showing the valuation of the various counties of the State as equalized by the state board in 1912 and as shown by the abstracts of the various counties in 1913, less exemptions:

	1912	1913
Apache	2,369,479.06	5,968,199.45
Cochise	32,500,761.76	87,344,185.31
Coconino	6,808,958.12	15,542,145.65
Graham	3,670,178.34	9,091,650.25
Greenlee	10,563,765.52	35,532,301.37
Gila	10,661,644.27	29,262,876.47
Maricopa	27,599,185.50	64,016,944.25
Mohave	5,973,364.11	15,968,396.59
Navajo	3,064,663.46	7,652,886.88
Pima	8,661,961.47	23,762,727.00
Pinal	5,123,445.89	18,716,281.93
Santa Cruz	2,418,720.01	5,983,188.13
Yavapai	16,171,921.21	36,842,679.13
Yuma	4,481,831.43	13,218,860.50
Totals	140,388,191.08	369,321,322.74

The foregoing figures are the result of the sessions held at Phoenix last week when all assessors and clerks of supervisors in the state and a number of treasurers and members of boards of supervisors met and compared the rolls of the various counties with a view of equalizing the assessments. Six day meetings and two evening sessions were held and when the county officials adjourned the state board of equalization went into session to make the final changes in the rolls.

LIND MAY BE BARRED

Huerta Issues a Defi to the United States that May Force Intervention

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 6.—"John Lind will be persona non grata to this government unless he brings with him to Mexico City credentials in due form, together with recognition of the government of Mexico."

In this official statement, issued late tonight, President Huerta issued a defi to the United States that may force the American government to intervene in this country's affairs. It was a flat threat that unless President Wilson recognizes Huerta's regime, which it is certain he will not do, John Lind will be expelled from Mexico when he arrives here as the personal representative of the Washington administration.

The statement was issued by Huerta following the receipt of news here that Lind was coming with instructions not to treat with the administration. In putting forth the defi the Mexican president utterly ignored a message from Secretary of State Bryan, urging that no attention be paid to unauthorized rumors regarding Lind's mission.

RESIGNS HIS OFFICE

A. G. Smith Gives Up His Position with Water Company

A. G. Smith has resigned his position as treasurer of the Gila Valley Electric, Gas and Water Co. The reason why Mr. Smith is giving up his office in the company is ill health and he will seek a lower altitude.

He has not decided as yet just where he and Mrs. Smith will locate; but they will go to Globe this week, where they will visit with friends for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have resided here nearly three years and have made many friends who will regret to hear of their departure. While here they have both taken an active interest in town betterments and their influence will be greatly missed.

Ben R. Clark has been appointed superintendent of the water company and will have charge of the office here as well as oversee the work being done by the company at its works in the Graham mountains.

The company at this time is developing more water and the work of completing the reservoir in Frye canyon is expected to be finished by the end of this year.

BOOSTS THE STATE

W. E. Barnes Says the Cotton Crop at Safford Finest He Has Seen

W. E. Barnes, the well known representative of the Southern Pacific in this state, was a visitor in Bisbee recently on one of his regular business trips through that city. While he has shown no let up in the securing of business for the S. P. through the usual channels that are worked by all railroads, as well as some original ones, Mr. Barnes has taken up and is conducting a work that is as important for the whole state as for his road. The development of Arizona and its resources. There is no immigration commissioner in any county of the state and no secretary of any commercial club who is a better booster for any section of Arizona than is Mr. Barnes for the whole state.

Mr. Barnes does not minimize the importance of the mining industry in the state, for that is something he fully recognises, but in conversation with a newspaper representative he dwelt on the growth of agriculture. The Salt River valley, he states, will ship the largest crop of cantaloupes it has ever produced and a larger crop of alfalfa than heretofore. Relative to alfalfa the same is true of the Gila valley, which is looking especially fine. Yuma will ship twenty-five or thirty cars of alfalfa seed of exceptional quality this year, the largest shipment it has ever known.

Among the activities of Mr. Barnes within the past few months has been the organization of cotton growers' associations and several of these have organized and become strong and useful. The most acreage in cotton is in the Salt River valley, but Yuma is also an important center and Safford is to be. He states that there are about 200 acres in Egyptian cotton near Safford and that he never saw finer in Egypt and has certainly found no finer in Arizona.

"Cotton growing in Arizona is only the revival of an ancient industry, for long before the arrival of the Spaniards, Indians and probably other aborigines before them, raised large cotton crops," said Mr. Barnes. "In many of the sections where irrigation is possible and practiced, cotton can be successfully grown, and I look for the cotton industry to become one of the important ones in the state.

"While the cotton crop about Safford is the finest I have seen, at Yuma the showing is an excellent one, and in the Sacaton Indian reservation it is also splendid. Here cotton has been grown for several years and much improvement and progress has been shown. The largest acreage is in the Salt River valley, where three associations of cotton growers have been formed. I prophesy a continued and steady growth in the large acreage employed in cotton cultivation."

AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Banquet Tendered John J. Birdno at Hotel Olive

A number of friends of John J. Birdno tendered him an informal banquet at the Hotel Olive Saturday evening, previous to his departure for Phoenix, where he goes to take up his duties as receiver of the United States Land Office.

The table was prettily decorated with cut roses and plates were laid for twenty-five guests. The banquet was served in courses and was a very enjoyable affair.

Mr. Birdno was the recipient of the felicitations of his friends expressed through R. W. Smith, clerk of the Superior Court, and A. G. Smith, to which he feelingly responded.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Smith, of Solomonville; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dowdle, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Madsen, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hayes Watson, of Lynorne, Scotland; Mr. and Mrs. John J. Birdno, Mrs. R. J. Young, Misses Della Owens, Josephine Simon, Mildred, Blanche and Lorraine Birdno, Messrs. E. W. Clayton, Harry Solomon, Arthur H. Ferrin, E. H. Larson and John F. Weber.

Mr. Birdno, accompanied by Mrs. Birdno and their daughter, Miss Blanche, left Sunday morning in his auto for Phoenix, by way of Benson and Tucson, and were accompanied as far as Stockton Pass by Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Madsen in their autos. Mrs. Birdno bid Mr. Birdno and Blanche good-bye at Stockton Pass and returned home with Mr. and Mrs. Madsen.

HIGH SCHOOL FOR SAFFORD

Plan Is Presented by Which Higher Education May Be Obtained

MEETING POORLY ATTENDED

Graham and Layton Opposed to Union High School Proposition

The meeting at Brier's Hall Friday evening, called for the purpose of taking some action relative to the proposed union high school for Safford, Layton, Graham and Lone Star school districts, was very poorly attended.

Owing to the recent agitation for a high school it was thought by those who are really interested in the establishment of higher education for the children of this vicinity, that there would be an overflow meeting. This was not the case, hardly a dozen being present.

Graham was represented by one taxpayer, P. O. Peterson. Layton sent just one, W. R. Reed. Lone Star was not interested enough to send even one representative, and Safford, where we hear so much about the high school and the necessity for a higher education for the children, was represented by a delegation of just about the number who always show by their attendance their interest in betterment for school and town. They were Mayor Z. C. Prina, W. R. Chambers, W. B. Fonda, U. I. Paxton, John J. Birdno and C. C. Rickman. Besides these there were several ladies present. Just about a dozen in all.

Now, if there is one thing more than another that should interest our citizenship, it is the higher education at home of our children, of those who are to take our place when we are gone, and we should be specially interested in higher education for the reason that it is necessary in the making of good citizens and patriots to continue our country as a real republic.

Securing for your boy or girl a good education is better than leaving them money, and you prepare them to face the world's battle fully equipped to win success, to make good. Therefore, we should do everything possible to secure the means for the better education of every boy and girl in Safford, Layton, Graham and Lone Star, and the one best means to obtain this is thru the establishment of a high school.

The discussion at Friday's meeting resulted in just this: Graham did not want a union high school, Layton was not in favor of the proposition unless it meant the consolidation of Safford and Layton into one school district. Lone Star was apparently opposed, as it was not interested enough to send even one delegate. Safford is in favor of a high school and was represented by a competent committee to back up the proposition.

As the matter stands now it looks as if Safford would have to go it alone and establish the first high school under the public school system in Graham County.

This can be accomplished very easily and at less expense than by consolidation or by a union high school, by building the addition to the present school building which really completes that edifice and had been planned for by the trustees, under whose supervision the present school building was erected.

This addition of four rooms and basement (for manual training), can be built and fully equipped for high school work for about $8,000, which sum can be raised by bonding the district.

The school trustees will start the ninth grade this year, which becomes the tenth grade next year and the eleventh grade the year following; the high school really beginning with the graduates of last year's eighth grade. Thus it will be apparent to everyone interested that at the end of the second year, Safford will be prepared to establish its high school and by the time the third class is formed the addition would be completed and fully equipped for the work of higher education.

The high school in Safford will be open to pupils from Layton, Lone Star, Graham, Artesian Belt and Solomonville, so that every boy and girl who graduates from the eighth grade in the several districts will have the opportunity of attending the high school.

This plan is the best after all if the people are really honest in their expressions for higher education for their boys and girls, and will adopt the means to secure it.

HIGH SCHOOL QUESTION

The meeting in Brier's Hall Friday evening, held for the purpose of getting the people together on a proposition for erecting a high school in Safford school district on the union high school plan, was a great disappointment to those who attended and were earnestly in favor of a high school.

The poor attendance, only about a dozen people being present, showed that there was little interest in the proposition, though we will probably hear a great deal of talk on the streets in regard to a high school by those who should have attended the meeting and expressed their thoughts before the people assembled.

Graham school district was represented by one taxpayer and Layton managed to have just one also, the remainder of the dozen were from Safford, when there should have been a hundred or more from the different school districts to discuss the advisability of adopting the union high school plan and thereby secure the erection of a good building and the maintainance of the higher grades as provided by the state school law.

The poor attendance shows conclusively that the people of the different school districts do not take the proper interest in a question so vital to their interests and their children in affording a higher education at home to the children of the several districts that would form a union high school, and consequently a damper is thrown upon the whole project.

There is no doubt in the minds of those who are interested that a high school is absolutely needed and that it would be better for the people to get together on the proposed plan of a union high school than upon any other plan which would involve a large expenditure of money to secure a high school.

From the discussion of the purposes of the meeting it soon developed through the representative from Graham district that the people of that district were not in favor of a union high school, and this fact also became evident as far as Layton is concerned, as its representative declared it would not come in on a high school proposition unless the two districts, Safford and Layton, were consolidated into one school district.

As Graham and Layton districts were not in favor of a union high school, and it is presumed that this is also the case with the people of the Lone Star district, as no representative was present, the plan of making a union high school district and erecting a handsome building for the purpose will undoubtedly fall through. This being the case, it is up to Safford to get its own high school and there is no doubt but what Safford can accomplish it.

The proposition of Layton that Safford and Layton consolidate into one school district was settled at the recent school election, when, by a vote of 2 to 1, the people refused to consolidate the districts. So that consolidation is now disposed of and is out of the question, and it remains for Safford to go it alone on the high school proposition and she can do it very successfully.

When the present school building was erected in Safford, the trustees had in mind the future growth of the town and the building was planned so that additions could be built that would preserve its architectural beauty. With this knowledge in mind, the trustees several years ago built the first addition to the building, conforming to the architectural lines and providing two rooms, one for the primary grade and the other for the eighth grade.

Safford can now build the next unit, which would be added to the building on the south side, giving four more rooms and entrance on the south. The basement could be be used for manual training. This addition would cost, with school furniture and apparatus, approximately, $8,000, and this amount could be paid by issuing bonds.

With the high school added to its present school building, Safford would then be fully equipped to teach the higher grades and could also accept pupils from the several school districts.

In order to get the high school started the trustees will provide for the coming school year, 1913-1914, the ninth grade, which in 1914-1915 will be the tenth grade. In this latter period, or school year, Safford could begin its addition and establish the high school in 1915-1916 with three grades and the close of the school year would give the fourth grade. In this way the high school could be accomplished at least expense to the taxpayers, and would really start with the first grade this coming school year.

A high school under consolidation with Layton, or one secured by a union high school district, would cost the taxpayers from $20,000 to $25,000, including lot, building and equipment. Safford can go it alone for a much smaller sum and have the first high school under the public school system in Graham county.

MAKING GOOD VERSUS SUCCESS

It is unfortunate that words so expressive of every-day achievements and originally of like interpretation should, through modern coinage, come to mean two widely different conditions. Every man has it within himself to make good—to do his best in the day's discharge of the task his mind or hands find to do—while it is not every man's privilege to achieve success, for, as the world goes, "success" spells money and money is not the real standard or measure of value by which human worth is finally judged. Neither is it given to every man to succeed under the modern construction of the word success since Dame Fortune is fickle and many are called but few chosen. Nevertheless all of us have the daily opportunity to make good—to put in our best licks and render an account of the best that is within us.

The recent announcement of J. J. Townsend's election to the presidency of the Chicago Stock Exchange, from an humble station in life as a blacksmith, furnishes a modern example of the man who made good and in so doing will be popularly spoken of as a successful man. But the man who could drive horse shoe nails so well as to attract the notice of a patron—in this case John A. King, an early president of the Fort Dearborn Bank—and finally secure promotion is the same type of man who abounds our banking institutions of today by the thousands. Mr. Townsend merely did well the task his hands found to do twenty-two years ago and the same man and the same hands have been busy in well-doing ever since—making good really, but now termed success according to the modern interpretation of the word.

In the banking world the most signal failures have been those who were restless to become the financial elect in a moment of time; wanted to be bank presidents before being ordinary bank clerks; didn't want to make good in their station, but to achieve success in one fell swoop. But these men have either destroyed useful careers or are doing penance behind bars. In these very days of thoughtful finance it is the doers and the deepest thinkers who are making good in their several tasks, that are offering the solutions to problems of finance, state and government. It is the day when men who are really making world progress are unknown, while the mental lame and habit halt are complaining of the lack of opportunity or favored fields for their talents. Leave success to its favored few. Let us make good in our common life. Pergere!—The Commerce Monthly.

We have received the first number of The Mining Journal, published at Clifton by E. and M. W. Jones. The Mining Journal is a bright, newsy paper of twelve pages and cover, in magazine form. It will be devoted to the upbuilding of Clifton and Morenci and Greenlee county in general.

M street would look much better to the eyes of visitors if the weeds and grass were removed and the street graded so as to prevent the rains creating frog ponds, especially south of the railroad tracks.

Safford has been literally wet of late, despite prohibition, but no one is kicking, unless it is you.

TAX CONVENTION

Graham and Greenlee Complete Their Reports on Assessable Properties

Graham County was the first county to be heard Wednesday, morning, July 30th, when the State convention was called to order by Chairman C. M. Zander.

Assessor D. D. Phillips, of Graham, answered most of the questions for that county. It was shown on the records that 1667 saddle horses had been assessed at $48.91, 25 stallions at $234 and 78 mules at $69.15. The valuation of the 75,592 range cattle was $1,512,155, an increase of 39,810 cattle over last year. Chairman Zander remarked this was the largest cattle increase shown by any county examined so far. Phillips said that in determining the number of cattle in the county he obtained as many records of shipments as possible, used affidavits and secured other information. He said he wasn't sure he had included all the cattle.

Phil C. Merrill, chairman of the Graham board, said he was confident they had assessed closer to the entire number than ever before. Merrill said they secured the records of the spring shipments, copies of the inspectors' records and also the cattle on hand at butcher shops.

Pat Rose, a member of the Gila board, asked Merrill if he didn't think there would be trouble over the assessment of the Boyce-Case-Johnson Cattle company at 29,000 head in Graham and Gila counties, when the cattle company claimed to have records showing their total number at 19,000. Phillips replied that the government count shows there are 21,000.

It was brought out that the Graham officials estimated one bull for every thirty head on range and in other counties one to every fifty head. J. C. Potts, chairman of the Mohave board, said they made a basis of one to every twenty-five head.

Asked how he made his assessments on merchandise stock and supplies, Phillips replied that a great number of the concerns gave him sworn statements, and that others turned over their records to him so he could see for himself the amount of their inventories. The assessment of the merchandise of the Solomon Commercial Company this year amounted to $85,000 and the merchandise of the Thatcher Implement and Mercantile Company, $22,500. Phillips said he saw the records of these companies and didn't ask them for sworn statements since he thought they were fair enough.

Thirty-six head of beef cattle were assessed at $30.14 in Graham this year. This cattle was on hand in the various shops ready for consumption. Chairman Zander remarked the sum assessed on the beef cattle should be larger since the minum on beef runs at $35.

One butter factory and 841 milk cows were assessed in Graham. The cows were not classed as A and B Phillips said he supposed one-half of the cows had been taken off the the range and they were not pure blooded cows. A total of 2622 bulls at $38 75 was assessed this year in Graham, against 800 at $25 last year. William Riggs, a member of the Cochise board, said that Graham's estimate of one bull for every thirty head of range cattle seemed to be out of proportion to that of other counties.

There were no sheep assessed in Graham. A total of 39,722 goats were assessed at $2. While they are of the Angora type, there are no blooded herds among them, according to Phillips. Phillips said he got the valuation of two dollars from the price stated by the tax commission. The minimum for the common goat is $1.50 and the graded goat $2.50. Billy goats were assessed separately.

Swine to the number of 421 were assessed at $10.12 this year against 251 at $3.50 in 1912. Asked by Assessor T. E. Campbell if he had followed the instructions of the tax commission on the definition of hogs. Phillips replied that he did. No poultry was assessed in Graham, Assessor Phillips considering there was not enough of it in that county. It developed that poultry was not assessed in Santa Cruz, Yuma, Graham or Mohave counties.

When the question of assessing bees came up Phillips said he didn't know the difference between them. "There's as much difference as between alfalfa hay and fox hay," remarked Chairman Zander. The sixty-four automobiles in Graham county were assessed at $507.98, practically all that number being Fords. "What is your practice in assessing automobiles?" asked Assessor Campbell, of Yavapai. "After a Ford has been used four or five months I assess them at $450," replied Phillips. "If a man buys a new car in February for $1800 in the spring you assess it at $1350," remarked Campbell. "In Yavapai county we assess any machine at its actual cash value if it hasn't been used a year." said Campbell.

Motorcycles were assessed in Graham at $133.75. There are four in that county. Assessor Campbell referring to motorcycles, said it was a class of property that seemed to be assessed too low when they run in price from $200 to $350. The examination of the Graham assessments was completed shortly before 10 o'clock, at which time Assessor J. H. Kirby and C. P. Dunn, a member of the board, were called to the stand for Greenlee county.

The highest price assessed cultivated land in Greenlee was $250 per acre for orchard land. There are only five or six acres of this land and it was classed by itself.

In Greenlee they assessed so-called waste land at $1.25 per acre. The waste land, according to Kirby, is not used for anything. Some of it might be called grazing land, while some is nothing but mountain sides, cliffs and rocks. "You could not feed a cow on fifty or sixty acres of it," said Kirby. . Land adjoining the town of Duncan was assessed at $175 an acre. A. S. Henderson, chairman of the Santa Cruz board, stated he thought the so-called waste land of Greenlee was worth as much as the common grazing land in Santa Cruz and Cochise.

Town and city lots in Greenlee were assessed at $258,170, against $91,140 in 1912. Kirby said they arrived at the value of town and city lots in various ways, principally by actual sales. On the question of the assessment of banks, it was remarked it was not believed that the book value of stock represented the actual cash value. "Are the banks assessed on the market value of their stock or on the book value?" asked Campbell, to which Chairman Zander replied that so far it had been found three banks in the state had been assessed on their market value. Campbell said all the banks should be treated under a similar method. "I believe up in Yavapai we got orders to use the book value, and I don't see why the tax commission doesn't demand that their instructions be carried out," said Campbell. P. J. Miller, a member of the tax commission, said he believed Campbell had got the wrong impression, after which the latter proceeded at once to dig down among the big quantity of documents in an effort to locate the letter containing the instructions. J. T. Bone, assessor of Maricopa county, remarked he believed he had received the same instructions. Greenlee assessed its banks on the book value on capital stock paid in, surplus and undivided profits.

In 1913 the number of head of cattle assessed in Greenlee was 38,484, against 8956 in 1912, showing the largest cattle increase of any county examined so far. Kirby partly explained this great excess in that they had found about 15,000 head had been assessed in another county the previous year, when they should have been under the Greenlee rolls.

In Greenlee 616 range horses were assessed at $22.31 and 399 work horses, classes A and B, at $59.19. In Graham county it was found a number of the work horses had been put in the saddle horse, class B, were assessed at $40.37, twelve stallions at $100, 220 mules at $91.77. against 104 at $46.90 in 1912. The increase in mules comes from a contract for a new smelter, sixty or seventy-five of the number being supplied from Maricopa county.

Two hundred and fifty milk cows were assessed at $35.16, 1145 bulls at $36.14, 400 sheep at $5 25, all remarkable increases in number. Kirby said there had been no protest in Greenlee in assessing sheep at $5.25. One hundred and nineteen dozens of poultry were assessed at $5; stocks of merchandise at $722,269, an increase of 18.5 over last year. In 1912 the smelter supplies were included in the abstract on merchandise. This year it is segregated. Kirby said the Shannon and Arizona Copper Companies gave him inventory statements to assist him in making their assessments.

The question of placing property owned by the city, county and state on the assessment roll came up shortly before noon. Greenlee and Cochise counties carry all that kind of property on their rolls. "With that property added to our rolls the total assessment would be increased more than $3,000,000," said Frank Luke a member of the Maricopa board.

Greenlee, up till noon, had been the only county that had not assessed its water works on the full valuation, as found by the corporation commission. The corporation commission valued the Morenci plant at $501,000 and the Clifton plant at $79,000. They were assessed by the Greenlee officials at $472,000 less than the total cash value as found by the commission.

CHAPTER XV.

I Discover Two Ghosts.

THE ghost I believed to be still in the upper halls of the house and now that I was in a position to watch the ladder by which he had entered I felt confident that I had cut off his retreat. I was surveying the cellar when I heard faint sounds in a new direction. Far away under the house and remote from the secret steps some one was moving toward me, and rapidly too! The ghost that I believed to have disappeared into the fourth floor hall must then have changed the line of his retreat and descended by one of the regular stairways.

I blew out my candle and stood with my back to the wall of the long corridor on which opened the various storerooms, the heating plant, laundry and other accessories of the modern house. My ghost was coming in haste—a haste that did not harmonize with the stately tread of the spooks of popular superstition. A slower pace and I should doubtless have fled before him, but quick, light steps echoed in the dark corridor, and I gathered courage from the thought that ghosts create echoes no more than they cast shadows.

As the steps drew nearer I prepared myself to spring upon him. I must unconsciously have taken a step, for he paused suddenly, stood still for a moment, then turned and scampered back the way he had come. After him I went as fast as I could run. The cement paved corridor was four or five feet wide, and I plunged through the dark at my best speed. At the end of the corridor I was pretty certain of my quarry, and I made ready to grapple with him. Then as I plunged into the wall my hands touched a man's face and for a moment clutched the collar of his coat. He had been waiting for me to strike the wall, and as he slipped out of my grasp he ran back toward the coal cellar. I had struck the wall with a force that knocked the wind out of me, but I got myself together with the loss of only an instant and renewed pursuit. I had no fear but that if he attempted to reach the open by means of the coal hole I should catch him on the ladder, and I sprinted for all I was worth to make sure of him.

My fleeting grasp of the man's collar and the agility with which he had slipped from my clasp had settled the ghost question, and I had now resolved the intruder into a common thief.

As I reached the old stairway he was mounting it two steps at a time, as I judged from the sound. I had hoped to catch and dispose of him without alarming the house, but it seemed inevitable now that the chase would end in such fashion as to arouse the company assembled in the library.

I heard him stumble and fall headlong at the door above. Then he shot off into the still darkened hall, and when I had gained the top I lost track of him for a moment. I paused and was about to strike a match when he resumed his flight, and I was forced to grapple with the fact that some one else was pursuing him. I held my match unstruck upon this new disclosure and stepped back within the concealed doors and waited. Up and down the hall two persons were running, and when they reached the ends of the corridor I heard hands touch the wall and the sound of dodging, and then almost instantly the two runners dashed by me again. The hall was so dark that I saw nothing, but as the runners passed the door I felt the rush of air caused by their flight.

Three or four times this had happened, and then, still without having made a light, I thrust out my foot at the next return of the unseen runners. Some one tripped and fell headlong, and I promptly flung myself upon him.

My prisoner's resistance engaged my best attention a moment, but when I had sat upon his legs and got hold of his struggling hands some one stole softly by me. My prisoner, too, heard and was attentive. Not only did I experience the same sensation as on the previous night of a passing near by, but I was conscious of the same faint perfume, as of a flower scent half caught in a garden at night, that had added to my mystification before. Then without the slightest warning the lights flashed on and a door closed somewhere, but it was not the hidden one leading down into the remnant of the old house, for my prisoner's head and shoulders lay across its threshold.

"Bounders, I say. Bounders!" he gasped.

He sighed deeply, bringing my dazed wits back to him, and I found myself gazing into the blinking eyes of Lord Arrowood.

"Bounders, I say. Bounders!" he gasped.

"In the circumstances, Lord Arrowood, I should not call names. Will you tell me what you mean by running through this house in this fashion? Stand up and give an account of yourself."

I helped him to his feet and bent over the stair rail leading down to the third floor. Evidently our strange transactions beneath and above had not disturbed the assembled suitors and their hostess, but in common decency Lord Arrowood must be disposed of promptly. There was no doubt about that.

"I was an ass to try it," muttered his lordship, pulling his tie into shape. "And now I want to get out. I want to go away from here."

He was tugging at the belt of his Norfolk coat, and something between it and his waistcoat evidently gave him concern. Our conversation was carried on in half whispers. He was so crestfallen that if it hadn't been for the necessity of maintaining silence I should have laughed outright.

"Out with it, my lord. What have you stuck in your coat?"

"They're bounders, all the rest of 'em," he asserted doggedly, "but I believe you to be a gentleman."

"I thank you, Lord Arrowood, for this mark of confidence. Open your coat! I declare that even if you have lifted a bit of the Hollister plate I will let you go."

Reluctantly, shamefacedly and still breathing hard from his late exertions, Lord Arrowood of Arrowood, Hants, England, obeyed me. There were five buttons to the close fitting jacket, and the loosening of every succeeding one seemed to give him pain. Then, with his head slightly lifted as though in disdain of me, he held out for my observation a pie, in the pan in which it had been baked. The top crust was browned to a nicety. Its edges were crimped neatly, and, in spite of the fact that I had so lately dined sumptuously at Miss Hollister's hospitable board, at sight of this alluring pastry I experienced the sharp twinges of aroused appetite.

"Now you have it, and I hope you are satisfied," said Lord Arrowood. "Kindly allow me to retire by the way I came."

"First," I replied, sobered by the gravity of his manner, "it would interest me as a student of character to know just what species of pie lured you to this burglarious deed."

"I have reason to think," he answered, with tears in his eyes, "that it is a gooseberry. I was hungry, if you must know the truth, and, having sampled the old lady's pies this morning, with nothing to eat since, I saw the coal hole open and ladder beneath, and the rest of it was easy. If you and the other chap hadn't chased me all over the estate I'd been off with my pie and and no harm done. The old lady's insane, you know, and has no manner of use for pies. The house is haunted in the bargain. When you had about winded me down in the cellar and cut me off from the ladder and chased me up here the ghost took a hand, and if you hadn't tripped me and sat on me the spirits would certainly have nailed me. O Lord, what a night!"

"You are sure you speak the truth when you say that the coal hole was open and that you found the ladder there when you came?"

"No manner of doubt of it. As I have already said, I believe you to be a gentleman, and between gentlemen certain confidences may pass that wouldn't be possible between a gentleman and those cattle down there."

He jerked his head scornfully to indicate the suitors below.

I bowed with such dignity as is possible when addressing a nobleman whom you have just caught in the act of lifting a gooseberry pie from a lady's pantry—a pie which you hold perforce in your hands.

"The fact is that I was without the price of food, and, to repeat, I was beastly hungry."

"Poverty and hunger, my lord, are pardonable sins, but gooseberry pastries are sacred to Hezekiah. My impressions of Hezekiah are the pleasantest, and I cannot allow you to intervene between her and the pie I hold in my hands. If you will accompany me below I will undertake to gain access to the pie vault, return this pie to its proper place and hand you at the foot of the ladder an apple pie in place of it. I dare say it never will be missed, but from what I know of Hezekiah any trifling with her appetite would be a crime indictable at common law."

His lordship seemed reassured, and we were about to descend by the concealed stair when he arrested me.

"Mr. Ames, you are a gentleman and possess a generous heart. We understand each other perfectly, and as I have every reason to believe that my suit is hopeless I ask the loan of $5 until I can confer with my friend, the British consul at New York. I shall sail at once for England."

He stepped down before me into the dark stairway, and I closed the door after me and followed him. I found my way to the pie pantry without difficulty, returned the gooseberry pie to its proper shelf, chose an apple pie and gave it, with a five dollar note, to Lord Arrowood.

At the bottom of the ladder he pressed my hand feelingly and expressed his gratitude in terms that would have touched a harder heart than mine. Then, having closed the coal hole and hidden the ladder under a pile of wood, I resumed my pursuit of the ghost.

I lighted my way with a candle through the lost chambers of the old house, up the hidden stairway and out into the fourth floor hall again. The old stair, I found on closer observation, reached only from the second to the fourth floor, and below this had been pieced with lumber carefully preserved from the earlier house. There was nothing so strange, after all, about the hidden stairway, though I was convinced that this had been no idea of Pepperton's, but that he had merely obeyed the orders of his eccentric client, the umbrella and dyspepsia cure millionaire.

I had no sooner let myself through the secret door into the upper hall than I was aware of a disturbance in the library below. I heard exclamations from the men, and as I ran down toward the third floor Miss Octavia's voice rose above the tumult.

"We must have patience, gentlemen. Chimneys are subject to moods just like human beings, and we are fortunate in having in the house a gentleman who is an expert in such matters."

"If you wait for that man to mend your chimney you will wait until doomsday."

So spake John Stewart Dick, taking his vengeance of me with my client and hostess. I might have forgiven him, but I could not forgive Hartley Wiggins.

"He doesn't know any more about chimneys than the man in the moon," my old friend was saying between coughs.

And then quite unmistakably I smelt smoke, and bending farther over the rail and peering down the stair well I saw smoke pouring from the library into the hall. It seemed to be in greater volume tonight than at previous manifestations. A gray blue cloud was filling the lower hall and rising toward me. I ran quickly to the third floor, to the chamber whose fireplace was served by the library chimney. The lights in the third floor hall winked out as I opened the door. I heard a step behind me somewhere, but I did not trouble about this. The switch inside the unused guest chamber responded readily to my touch, and on kneeling by the hearth I found it cold as I had expected. There was absolutely no way of choking the library flue at this point, for, as I had established earlier, all the fireplaces in this chimney had their independent flues.

The hall outside was still dark, and I did not try the switch. The pursuit was better carried on in darkness, and I had by this time become accustomed to rapid locomotion through unlighted passages. I leaned over the stair well and heard exclamations of surprise at the sudden cessation of the smoke, which had evidently abated as abruptly as it had begun. The windows and doors had been opened and the company had returned to the library.

"Quite extraordinary—really quite remarkable!" they were saying below. I heard Cecilia's light laughter as the odd ways of the chimney were discussed. And as I stood thus peering down and listening the Swedish maid's blond head appeared below me, bending over the well rail on the second floor. She, too, was taking note of affairs in the library, and as I watched her she lifted her head and her eyes met mine. Then while we still stared at each other the second floor lights went out with familiar abruptness, and as I craned my neck to peer into the blackness above me I experienced once more that ghostly passing as of some light, unearthly thing across my face. I reached for it wildly with my hands, but it seemed to be caught away from me, and then as I fought the air madly it brushed my cheek again. I have no words to describe the strange effect of that touch. I felt my scalp creep and cold chills ran down my spine. It seemingly came from above, and it was not like a hand, unless a hand of wonderful lightness. Certainly no human arm could reach down the stair well to where I stood.

I waited for its recurrence a moment, but it came no more. Then on a sudden prompting I stole swiftly to the fourth floor, lighted my candle and gazed about. I thought it well to let the electric light alone, for my ghost had once too often plunged me into darkness at critical moments, and a candle in my hands was not subject to his trickery.

The hall was perfectly quiet. The door leading down the hidden stair was invisible, and I had not yet learned how it might be opened from the hall, though Bassford Hollister had undoubtedly left the house by this means after my interview with him on the roof. And reminded of the roof, I opened the trunk room door and peered in. The candle light slowly crept into its dark corners, and, looking up, I marked the presence of the trap door secure in the opening. As I stood on the threshold of the trunk piled room, my hand on the knob and the candle thrust well before me, I heard a slight furtive movement to my left and behind the door. I listened to the murmur of talk below for a moment, then cautiously advanced my candle farther into the room. I took one step and then cautiously another until the whole of the trunk room was well within range of my vision.

And there, seated on a prodigious trunk frescoed with labels of a dozen foreign inns, I beheld Hezekiah!

I Beheld Hezekiah!

FOREST ASSOCIATION

To give settlers and other local users a larger voice in national forest administration, Secretary of Agriculture Houston has just promulgated a new regulation which goes into effect at once, providing a means by which the forest service may systematically co-operate with duly organized associations of such users.

Any association whose members include a majority of the local residents making use of the national forests may get together and select a committee to meet with the local forest officers. This committee will be recognized in an advisory capacity in settling questions which may arise between the forest service and the public in the use of the forests.

The exact wording of the regulation is:

"Wherever an association whose membership includes a majority of the local residents using a national forest, or portion thereof, for like purposes, shall select a committee, an agreement on the part of which shall be binding upon the association, such committee, upon application to the district forester, may be recognized in an advisory capacity on behalf of the association, and shall be entitled to receive notice of proposed action and have an opportunity to be heard by the local forest officer in reference to any proposed changes likely to affect the use or interest in the forest or portion thereof enjoyed by such permittees. The general principles of recognition and responsibility governing co-operation with live stock associations are herewith extended, so far as they are applicable, to the other regular lines of business conducted on the national forests.

Items of Interest Gathered by the Guardian's Correspondents

Mrs. Catherine Pace returned from Los Angeles the latter part of the week, after spending the past month there recuperating.

Mrs. Drew and children, of Pima, spent several days here this week visiting with relatives.

Preparations are being made to open the Academy on the 25th of August. The board and faculty expect to visit every town in the valley before its opening to let people know what it expects to do this year.

Mrs. Jesse Phillips spent the fore part of the week visiting in Thomas and Geronimo.

Miss Ella Tyler returned from Los Angeles Friday, after taking in the sights there for a couple of weeks.

Joe Moody has returned home from Australia, where he has spent most of the summer.

Mrs. Jacob Hamblin, mother of Mrs. Inez Lee, came from St. Johns to spend a few weeks with her daughter.

Mrs. Maud Callison is here to spend a few weeks with her parents. She has been studying osteopathy in Los Angeles for the past two years.

A commendable piece of work has been done this week in the way of clearing the weeds from the streets.

Mrs. Hattie Saddler and her two children, of Douglas, are visiting with Mrs. Saddler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Curtis.

Miss Blanche Layton has returned home after spending the past two months in Utah and California.

David Phillips spent last week in Phoenix attending the assessors' convention. He returned home Tuesday.

The Camp Fire organization of the Young Ladies' was entertained at the home of Janet Ison Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Gustafson, of Pima, was a visitor in town Sunday.

The Primary Association held an interesting social Monday afternoon. After opening exercises in the hall, the children were taken to the grove where the differnt classes formed into groups and played games, after which refreshments of sandwiches, fruit cake and lemonade were served.

FORT THOMAS

Rev. Bland Beauchamp has leased the Fine property.

Brother Woods has recovered from a long siege of fever.

Mr. Campbell, the well expert, is here at work on the big drill.

Ed McEuen has returned from an extended trip through Oklahoma and Texas.

Nora Hall, of Globe, was a visitor at her mother's, Mrs. Joe Ballard, last week.

Sam Hinton has made another addition to his store. It is a much needed wareroom.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Slaughter lost their baby last Sunday. He was being taken to Safford for treatment when he died. The affliction was akin to meningitis.

W. O. Tuttle has built a nice machine shop east of his residence. He is sinking a well for the general use of the public. This is the spirit of co-operation that will make Fort Thomas the coming place for profitable investment, if the people catch on to values and reciprocate.

Messrs. Tuttle and son, Shuck Comer, Tom Williams, Lloyd Willis, and B. Williams chartered the Tuttle "Velie," and made a moonlight trip to the Indian Hot Springs for a week end swim.

Mr. Fine and family will leave this week for Phoenix. Mr. Fine has disposed of his live stock and this year's crops and will rent his farm.

Big bands of Ky-terras (Apache Indians), from the Calva district, are camped on the outskirts of town. They are peaceably inclined now and on no more belligerent raid than the attack of the jack and pin oak trees on the Galliuros. There they will quietly wear away a hot August, gathering enough acorns for the winter. These acorns with a very little flour and coffee, will sustain them in good condition until spring. Evidently they have no nerve-racking ploblem of the high-cost of living. Even so! Their simple life hath also its rewards in very truth.

Fords Are the Sellers

We do not hesitate to say that the Ford is the best and most durable car on the market for the price. This is a fact easily proven. They are the best sellers and give the best satisfaction. There are more of them in the valley than any other make. We have 16 on the floor now, with more on the road. Solomon Commercial Co. 14-tf

Costly Treatment

HALL WINS AGAIN

Defeated Berry, of Globe, in Two Falls. Curtis Wins from Rogers

Young Hall added one more to his long list of victories when he defeated Ed Berry, of Globe, Saturday night, at the Amusement Hall, Thatcher. Berry weighed in at 180 pounds and Hall at 140 pounds.

A large crowd was present when the two wrestlers faced one another and enjoyed the contest. Hall secured the first fall in six minutes and accomplished the next fall in the same time.

In the bout between Will Curtis and Dave Rogers, Curtis was victor in two straight falls in fifteen minutes.

Young Hall then gave an exhibition of wrestling points with Joe Phillips, champion of Safford, and Rogers and Robinson, of Thatcher.

BELIEVES IN ARIZONA

W. B. Norton, who has been the special soap salesman for the N. K. Fairbanks Co. the past two years, has resigned his position, and has accepted a position with the Walter Hill Co., produce dealers, of Phoenix, Ariz. Mr. Norton and family will make their home in Ray, Arizona. Mr. Norton attended the university at Valparaiso, Ind., and was with the Fairbanks Co. for six years. In 1912 he married a Safford girl, Mrs. Pauline Foster, at Roswell, N. M., and in order to be with his family, he resigned his position with the Fairbanks Co. Mr. Norton comes to Arizona to be a citizen within her bounds. His faith in Arizona has grown with his growing knowledge of her strength and possibilities.

ROUNDY IMPROVING

W. C. Roundy, the popular traveler for E. P. Kepley Co., El Paso, Texas, who has been very sick for several months from tuberculosis of the throat, came up from Globe Sunday for his second treatment of Piorkowski's turtle serum. Mr. Roundy took his first treatment Sunday, July 27th, and during the week following felt some improvement in appetite and gained some strength. The next treatment will be given on Sunday. Mr. Roundy has great faith in the treatment and his many friends here hope the treatment will result in his ultimate recovery of health.

GOES TO EL PASO

Ben L. Sowell, who has been very ill at his ranch home east of town for several months, from stomach trouble, was taken to El Paso, Texas, yesterday morning for treatment at the Hotel Dieu, one of the best hospitals in the Southwest. He was accompanied to Bowie by Thomas Richards. His daughter, Mrs. R. A. Egbert, who lives in El Paso, went with him to take care of him on the journey. Mr. Sowell was very weak and left here in a cot. At Bowie, Mr. Richards secured his berth and saw that he was comfortable for the trip to the Pass City.

HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

Anton Jacobson has become the latest owner of the Hotel Olive. The deal with the Cluff brothers, who owned the property, went through Saturday. Mr. Jacobson takes possession of the property, but Dr. Galbraith may continue his lease until the time is up. The Hotel Olive is a good property and under good management can be made a very successful hostelry.

WASHOUT ON RAILROAD

As a result of the heavy rain of Wednesday evening, the track of the Arizona Eastern on the curve about one mile north of town, was washed out for a distance of about 50 feet. The section hands repaired the break yesterday morning, the southbound passenger train being delayed twenty minutes.

SOME FINE ONIONS

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. THE Indian Motocycle opens up an entirely new field for pleasure touring. A roomy, comfortable and handsome side car can now be attached to any of the 1913 Indian Motocycle models. A passenger can be taken over the road as easily and comfortably as in an automobile.
With Side Car

The Indian Side Car is of the torpedo body type, luxuriously upholstered and handsomely finished. A high seat back insures the passenger's comfort. The car is ample in size, even for a large person.

As a motor vehicle for two people, the Indian Motocycle with Side Car represents an extraordinarily low outlay for running expenses, such as for tires, oil and gasoline.

The low hung frame is attached with strong connecting braces to the rigid parts of the motorcycle frame. Thus the cradle springs of the motorcycle, in conjunction with the leaf springs of the side car, absorb all road jars and vibrations.
